to serve future generations to come.*

Adler Legacy Fund

Since it opened in 2014, the Capital Caring Health Adler Center for Caring has served as a bedrock in the community for loved ones who need extra care.

As a 501c3 non-profit organization, Capital Caring Health relies on the support of our community to help provide patients and families with compassionate care of the highest quality, without turning anyone away for lack of funds.

We believe in a world where patients with life-limiting illness can maintain dignity and comfort, while receiving the physical, emotional, and spiritual support that they deserve.

When you donate to the Adler Legacy Fund today, you help to ensure that patients and families can rely on the Capital Caring Health Adler Center for Caring for years to come. Your gift will help maintain our state-of-the-art inpatient facility so that your fellow neighbors and loved ones can receive support when it's most needed, in a haven of quality care.

Thank you!

We can't do it without you.

The Center's legacy is your legacy, and future patients deserve the same excellent level of care.

About the Adler Center for Caring on the Van Metre Campus

The Capital Caring Health Adler Center for Caring on the Van Metre Campus is among the most state-of-the-art inpatient hospice facilities in the nation. With 21 beds, the Adler Center is situated just off Route 50 in Loudoun County. Individual patient rooms, as well as a country kitchen, patient spa, and grand living room make this warm and inviting facility an oasis of quality care. Located on the same campus is the Schaufeld Family Advanced Pain Clinic. The Pain Clinic provides interventional pain management services for patients requiring acute palliative care. Patients with advanced disease symptoms that impair their capacity to enjoy life fully benefit from the various interventional therapies, enabling them to return to their daily routines.
